FASHION THESIS

Creating Moodboards

Concept

A new definition of aesthetics inspired by collage art, achieved through reconstruction of secondhand clothes. Along with the story of Zara's workers. They left a desperate notes said "I did not get paid for this". This can reflect the truth of the fast fashion business. People buy then wear it just a few times. So, I want to recreate a garment from the wornout clothes to break the cycle and reduce the another trash.

About

The FW'19 collection is a celebration of colour, print and a pure reflection of Bangkok's bold city life. I was creating the collection with the Italian designers from Elie Saab and Dolce Gabbana.

Process

Stage 1
Defining color of the collection
Finding concept and key piece
Searching for fabrics
Meeting the sales team
Creating moodboards

Stage 2
Doing a skecth
Design prints and woven fabrics
Pattern making
Make a prototype
Do a fitting

Stage 3
Revise the fits
Present the collection
Shooting lookbook

Concept

I was inspired by the world of future. City are full of silver building and neon lighting of the street. Most of material are shiny and dazzling but still base on the black color refleck the darkness of society. Also inspired by the graffiti and typography that still remain in the futuristic simulation. Ulitarian clothes are more important than present because people want more function to struggle in the society. Finally, This fashion set was made to reflect the world of future in the heart of city.

Concept of The Collection

This collection was inspiring by the social situation that impacted our globalization. Covid-19 pandemic has been with us for a while. It changes a lot of people's behavior and perception of consuming. People are more conscious of health and protection. Mask and alcohol gel are more crucial than cosmetics and accessories. That is the material that I can interpret in the collection in terms of silhouettes and colors. Moreover, Social and online channels are more necessary these days. That can show how people fight and live in the modern world. So, all graphics and artwork in the collection can represent this statement.

The Laughing Tiger

I relish the morning mists,
I smile at the thunderous storms,
I relax when the sun burns high,
I'm the laughing tiger;
My spirit will never die.
